Six hundred and fifty two books and articles published between 1945 and 1968 are listed in this bibliography dealing with all aspects of poverty. The bibliography is divided into 8 major sections, each with subheadings covering smaller areas. The major headings are: general; emergence and identification of poverty; groups with special problems (rural persons, migrants, Negroes, and Spanish-speaking people); the life-space: individual and community (cultural factors); educational achievement, aspirations, and learning problems; resource development problems and programs; miscellaneous collection of poverty literature; and bibliographies. An author index is also provided. (DK)

PREFACE

This bibliography is a selected compilation of literature dealing with aspects of poverty in the United States. The overall approach has been to present an interdisciplinary view of the literature so the reader can better appreciate the complex nature of the poverty problem. The collection, spanning approximately 15 years, includes citations from the fields of anthropology, demography, economics, physical and mental health, psychology, sociology, and social psychology.

Most references are reports of field investigations. Not all of the citations, however, are reports of empirical research. Some include position papers designed to clarify either research variables or major themes pertinent for researchers studying socioeconomic deprivation.

The classification system used was developed to encompass most aspects of the poverty problem. Items which overlapped several categories were classified under the heading that seemed most appropriate for the major treatment of the subject matter.

In addition to specific subject areas, three other classification categories are used. The General category includes those items which, because of their subject matter, cannot easily be classified under an exact subject heading. The Miscellaneous poverty literature category contains, for the most part, anthologies and symposia whose separate articles have been catalogued in the bibliography item by item. The Bibliography category is merely a presentation of some of the other existing bibliographies dealing with poverty and socioeconomic deprivation.

Although the major emphasis of this bibliography is on the dynamics of poverty and characteristics of the poor, sources dealing with proposals for alleviating poverty, such as income maintenance, negative income tax, and family allowances, can be found under Resource Development Problems and Programs. In particular, see Alternative Solutions: Program Proposals and Evaluations.

In the text of the bibliography, citations are arranged in alphabetical order under major subject matter categories. Each entry in the bibliography is numbered consecutively. The index at the end of the bibliography contains citations arranged alphabetically by author. Accompanying each author entry in the index is a number corresponding to the number of the reference in the text.
